By Sami Hermez : War Is Coming: Between Past and Future Violence in Lebanon (The Ethnography of Political Violence) a nation state is a type of state that joins the political entity of a state to the cultural entity of a nation from which it aims to derive its political legitimacy sample chapters by title we are pleased to provide you with introductory chapters from many of our recent books listed below some files are in War Is Coming: Between Past and Future Violence in Lebanon (The Ethnography of Political Violence):

From 1975 to 1990 Lebanon experienced a long war involving various national and international actors The peace agreement that followed and officially propelled the country into a postwar era did not address many of the root causes of war nor did it hold main actors accountable Instead a politics of no victor no vanquished was promoted in which the political elite agreed simply to consign the war to the past However since then Lebanon has found itself sti Deeply poignant An eloquently written and altogether fascinating read about how violence is lived in multiple temporal registers in Lebanon and how both remembering past and anticipating future violence critically shape lived experience in the present md
