Tundra: Northern Siberians in the Post-Communist Transition:

4 of 4 review helpful Book of the Month By Gail Fondahl 1 May 2003 Gail Fondahl University of Northern British Columbia John Ziker's Peoples of the Tundra provides an informative account of post-Soviet adaptations in the remote indigenous community of Ust Avam on the Taymyr peninsula. He suggests that counter to global trends of even remote communities becoming increasingly linked with the world economy. On ethnographic grounds alone Ziker's book is a unique and valuable contribution. Despite increased fieldwork opportunities for foreigners in the former Soviet Union in recent years, much of Russia and Siberia remains terra incognita to Western scholars except for specialists who know the Russian literature. Ziker's account of the Dolgan and Nganasan peoples of the Ust Avam community is a fascinating analysis of how people adapt their hunting, fishing, and herding. Not from the Publisher.
