Care giving is an activity that has been practiced by all human societies From the earliest societies through to the present all humans have faced choices regarding how people in positions of dependency are to be treated As such care giving and the form it takes is a central experience of being a human and one that is culturally mediated Archaeology has tended to marginalise the study of care and debates surrounding our ability to recognise it within the archaeol This mix of experience brings out the richness of this complex subject With a good range of examples covering a vast expanse of time and space appreciation of data in interdisciplinary contexts and rigorous and insightful analyses the book certainly seems
